FAIRHAVEN FESTIVAL OF FLAGS

"The Niki In Attack", a static demonstration of our first line of defense, will be on display in the Fairhaven Junior High School auditorium, Fairhaven, Massachusetts on the 6th of July, as part of the Festival of Flags' celebration.

Four performances a day of forty minutes duration will be run afternoon and evening. Manning the three million dollars worth of electronic equipment will be an eleven man unit of trained army technicians in command of Lt. Thomas of Fort Totten Long Island, New York. "The Niki In Attack" display will be held during the four days of the Festival.

On the parking lot of the National Bank of Fairhaven on Huttleston Avenue, Fairhaven the United States Army's Worlds Fair exhibit, "The Third Challenge", will be on display for the four-day Festival of Flags. "The Third Challenge" is an expandable walk-in van containing many interesting and fascinating exhibits. There will be the rifle range, featuring audience participation where the public can actually fire the latest aluminum weapon of the U. S. Army. The hits on target are scored electronically. This should prove exciting to the youngsters in particular.

CLINIC SCHEDULED

There will be a clinic at the Mattapoisett Town Hall this Thursday, June 23rd, from 9:30 to 11 A.M. for pre-school children. At this time a third dose of DPT will be given to those who are taking the series or to any child needing a booster.

The second dose of trivalent oral polio vaccine will be given to those who are taking the series or needing a booster.

cond grade, he no longer walked down the Neck Road to school. The Town had, after repeated attempts, finally voted to abolish certain school districts and to start consolidation. The little school house on the Neck Road was one of those discontinued.

During the next two or three years Father and the rest of the children from his vicinity walked the length of the River Road--from the Herring Weir to John Jenney's Corner--to the Hammondtown School, a little one-room school house that sat on the east side of the Acushnet Road across the road from the frog pond. This little school house, which had stood there at the head of the triangle for more than half a century--and was to sit there many years more--was deeply etched in the memories of hundreds of Hammondtowners. There are various sketches and drawings of it in some of the older houses of the town, including one in the museum.

Also, it was the scene, some years later, of the first teaching of Miss Olivia Jenney--or Livie Jenney, as she was called by everyone in town--whose home was across the corner from the school, and who taught there until it was closed. She then for many years taught the East End School at the top of Macomber's Hill where she is still fondly remembered by many Pine Islanders. (The East End School house is now the Legion Hall.)

To get back to Father. Again, still being but a little tyke, he didn't remember much about going to this school either except getting his feet wet. This time the irresistible lure wasn't a brook but a frog pond. Every noon, as soon as the contents of the dinner pails had been gulped down, the boys all raced across the road to the pond where in warm weather they lost their balance along the water's edge, or when the ice was thin "accidentally" broke through. Probably the only days their shoes were dry were the really cold days when the ice was good for sliding.

One thing Father did recall about going to this school. This was the mile long walk early on a winter's morning from the Herring Weir the length of the River Road in the face of the bitter blast of a high northwest wind with the temperature in the 'teens. There was no avoiding it; the children had to fight it every inch of the way. It was part of their life: up at five, chores till six, breakfast, then this.

Once the primary grades were completed, Father and the neighboring farm children walked every day to the village to the Grammar School at the southwest corner of Church and Pearl Streets--the so-called "Olive Branch School House" (later the Jabez Goodspeed Memorial and now a dwelling opposite the Center School). This "Olive Branch" school house was probably the oldest in town. It had been there in the War of 1812 when the British attacked the waterfront in the middle of the night, for Mrs. Willis ran up Pearl Street in her nightgown to give the alarm by ringing the schoolbell.

THE MATTAPOISETT SPORTS COMMITTEE has been advised by the Mattapoisett School Committee that certain acts of vandalism have occurred at Center School. It has come to the attention of the Sports Committee that boys of the 15 & 16 year old age group are responsible for these acts. The Sports Committee is cooperating in this matter and the Police Department has been notified. We ask the cooperation of all citizens in the apprehension of these culprits so that the younger better behaved boys are not denied the use of school property for sports' activities.

Walking from the Herring Weir, the farm children had a long trudge up grade to the Reservation Road, then past the Town Pound on the south side of the road part way down the hill, past the blacksmith shop just west of Mendell's Corner, and past the sprawling buildings and long stacks of boards of Dexter's sawmill with the rumble of the waterwheel, the creaking and scratching of the saw, and the roar of the water gushing through the narrow flume.

Most of the houses the children walked past on Main Street are still there. The George Purrington house had not yet been built, and the large lot was huckleberry pasture. Nor was Hammond Street built, alongside it, although it had been talked about so much that Capt. Ansel Weeks had shown it on the 1856 map some 15 years before. Across from the Purrington house stood one of the old Barrows Houses (later Griffin) which has since been taken down and a new one built in its place. The only other new houses since that time are Mrs. Virginia Mahoney's home and the dwelling opposite Mr. Kenneth Wood's house.

Once the kids entered the old school they sat in a room that everybody in town had sat in. In those years right after the Civil War there were practically no newcomers to the town; thus everyone had grown up in the village and shared the experience of having watch-

CAPEWAY LITTLE LEAGUE BASEBALL NEWS

Last Week's Results: Tuesday's games: Greens versus Cubs. The Cubs went down to defeat by the Greens 15-6. This was a bitter defeat for the Cubs who were forced to play without the services of 4 regulars who were not present. The Cubs did their level best, and would not quit. "Go Go" Gomez, David MacLean and John Alves starred for the Greens. Steve Kelly pitched the win and also hit a homer to help the winner's cause.

Blues versus Royals. The Blues defeated the Royals 7-2, and clinched the first half championship. Eric Pepin pitched the win while teammates gave him strong support on the field. Peter Collins, Eric Pepin and Ray Quinn were the leading batsmen for the Blues. Sherman and Martin were outstanding for the Royals.

Reds versus Eagles. The Reds shut out the Eagles 2-0 in a well played contest. Chucky Crowley and Paul Empey combined pitching duties for the win. Rookie Tom O'Leary, starting at 2nd base, starred on defense. Jeff Osbourne, although taking the loss, did a creditable job.

ed the clock on the old school wall. The next house down Pearl Street (now Mr. Spark's) was lived in by a widow with whom the boys were in constant trouble. At recess their ball was constantly going over the fence into her yard. One or more boys had to go after it; she was always sitting in the window waiting for this so she could lodge a complaint of trespass. The order was given; no more trespass on the lady's property. So the boys went down to the back corner and dug a hole under the fence, well camouflaged and shallow, but big enough for a small boy to squirm through it and, watching his chance, recover the ball. But she discovered the hole. So another order: No more ball-playing.

Maybe this closing of a natural vent to work off steam accounted for the increase in pranks. At any rate, at one point during this period, the teacher, much disliked by the boys, was a man who was hiding a premature bald spot by wearing a toupee--quite a fancy and luxuriant toupee--which enabled him to think he made quite an effect on the ladies. He fooled almost everybody; but some of the older boys caught on, and at noontime one day they climbed up through the trap door in the vestibule, and when the teacher entered they let down a fishline and a cluster of hooks, snatched off the toupee, hauled it up in the upper open space, and kept it there a while. The teacher danced and threatened with rage. When all the kids in school had seen the shorn scalp, the boys straight win in league play 6-3. The Cubs put a real scare into the undefeated Blues, and led most of the way 3-2. The Blues, after tying the game up in the 5th frame and forcing an extra inning of play, finally pulled the game out of the fire. Dave Downing scored on Steven MacLean's bunt single to break the tie and Ray Quinn's homer scoring MacLean were the insurance runs. Field champs were Gene Gaspar, Eric Pepin and Mark Breton, while Cubs Bobby O'Brien, Vin Lopes and Long came up with a few tricks of their own.

Thursday's Games: Royals versus Greens. The Greens, showing marked improvement, defeated the Royals 11-2, and made second place a muddle with 3 teams vying for the position. Steve "Go Go" Gomez pitched the win and started at bat going 3 for 4 including a long 3-run homer.

Reds versus Cubs. The Cubs vanquished the Reds 4-2, and also helped muddle second place. Vin Lopes pitched a 2 hitter. Bob O'Brien, Vin Lopes, Billy Boggins and Jackie Stanton were the big bats with 2 hits each. Redmen Ken Wilbur and Chuck Crowley combined to spoil Vinnie's shut-out.

Blues versus Eagles. The Blues defeated the Eagles 8-2 behind pitcher Mark Breton and a strong defense. Third sacker for the Blues, Eric Pepin had 6 shut-outs starring in defense, while rookies Mark Harris and Peter Noyer starred at bat. This was the Blue's 10th straight victory. David Texeira, Benny Leary and Jeff Osbourne were outstanding for the Eagles.
